

Residents and Communities

Kenyon aims to improve lives within the communities in which it works. This means recognising the opportunities available to us to exert positive change in local areas. We do this by:

- recruiting locally

- making resident satisfaction a key measure of success

- contributing to local good causes

- adding value through becoming involved in local community work

Our work within communities can support regeneration by keeping money in the immediate area of works, and by providing local people with jobs and other opportunities for improving their quality of life.

Working with communities meets our objective of developing lasting local legacies.
